GBy Associated Press.)
GREENSBURG. P.A., April 6.—John Wessells, a striking miner, was shot and killed to-night while going from his home to an outbuilding. It is not known who fired the shot. Wessells, it is alleged, had promised to go to work to-morrow, morning. The sherffl is gathering together capaties to-night and will rush them to the coal works when they are called for. Late to-night Edward E. Robbins, on behalf of the Pittsburg and Ballimore Coal Company, applied for an injunction or restrain the strikers from interfering with miners working.

I have to laugh when I read the statement of the trustees to the effect that a portion of the records of the supply department of the Mutual is missing, or was destroyed. The alleged iniquities of the Dingley law, so far as the manufacture of watche is concerned, were pointed out by Mr. Rainey (Illinois), whose tariff revision speech was listened to with much interest the "stand-patters," so-called, making copious notes for discussions on protec ion, which are foreshadowed,

Using the watch trust as an object lesson to show how protection works in buhalf of monopolies, Mr. Rainey sot up a "kindergarten school for stand-pat Republicans." He displayed a number of watches of American make, which he said had been bought abroad and are now being reseld in the United States. "Why does he gentleman continue to speak of the watch trust?" ssked Mr. Gardner (Massachusetts). "I am a stockholder in the Waltham Company, and I have no knowledge that they are in a trust." Revision Coming, Said Speaker. Mr. Rainey read a letter from the peaker to a friend in the West, in which speaker to a friend in the West, in which he stated that "tariff revision would come in the not distant future,"— "How can it come if the speaker doesn't want it?" asked Mr. Sulzer (Now York.)

"It will come because the next House "It will come because the next rouse will be Democratic," responded Mr. Rainey, which brought a round of applause from the Democratic side. Mr. Rainey charged Mr. Payne (New York), with having gone about the chamber yesterday and advised the Republicans not to issue any questions. "You must have been a mind-reader," repulsed Mr. Payne.

"You must have been a mind-reader," replied Mr. Payne.

"There are no leaders on the majority side of this House," continued Mr. Rainey. "The real leaders of the Republican party are the "McCurdy's McCall's and Hamiltons; the "Inockefellers who skulk behind stone walls to resist service—they are the real leaders of the Republican party. The Democratic party needs no leader for every platform of the Democratic party mans "Thou shalt not steal." As long as that sentence is emblazoned on the party's escutcheon, no leader is necessary."

Mr. Rainey was accorded an ovation by his colleagues on concluding.

interest in railronds is confined to those in my own State."

Mr. Elikins declared his principal objection to the House bill to be that it does not go far enough in remedying evils and indicated the respects in which, according to his opinion, the bill falls short of accomplishing all that should be accomplished by railrond legislation. Among these were the following: A prohibition against railronds producing, selling and shipping their own coal and other like articles in competition with other owners; a requirement competiting interstate roads to make connections with connecting lines, and a requirement for the fair and just distribution of cars among shippers.

Commenting on these omissions, Mr. Iolkins said a shipper, single-handed and alone, cannot afford to sue a great interstate railroad; in doing so be is bound to incur large expense, great delay, and the hostillity of the great through line. He had, he said, introduced amendments covering these defects.

"In the State of West Virginia and other States." said Mr. Elkins, "there are many men who have made large investments in agricultural, coal, timber, from ore, and other lands, who are able and desirous of building short lines from ten to one hundred miles long to reach those lands and find a market for their products, but they will not build them under present conditions.

"As matters now stand, it is in the power of the great through lines to largely prevent the building of branch or lateral lines or to utterly crush them out when built or make them unprofitable."

Mr. Elkins said that any legislation attempting to confer upon the interstate. Commerce Commission the power to fix rates will be unconstitutional unless it prescribes: "the standard of charges which shall control," and that any leg-
